

Volunteers-In-Parks

You are a Very Important Person

Volunteer with the National Park Service (NPS) and help care for these special places.

Volunteers-In-Parks (VIPs) work side-by-side with National Park Service employees and partners in parks from Maine to Hawaii, from Alaska to Florida, in big cities and small towns, even in remote wilderness areas.

There are more than 390 national parks throughout the United States and its territories. Whether you work behind the scenes or with park visitors, you can make a difference by helping to connect people with their parks.

Become a VIP and put yourself at the heart of the park experience.

About Volunteers-In-Parks

Who can be a VIP?

Anyone can be a VIP. Individuals, couples, families, students, and organized groups can volunteer. Those under 18 years of age may volunteer with the official, signed permission of a parent or guardian. We welcome Volunteers-In-Parks from all over the United States and the world.

What do VIPs do?

Volunteers-In-Parks play an ever-increasing role in national parks doing a variety of jobs. Here is a sampling of volunteer activities that may interest you:

- Working at an information desk answering visitor questions;
- Presenting living history demonstrations in period costume;
- Building fences, painting buildings, and making cabinets;
- Giving guided nature walks and evening campfire programs;
- Assisting with preservation of museum artifacts;
- Maintaining trails and building boardwalks;
- Designing computer programs or park websites;
- Serving on a bike, horseback, or beach patrol.

These are a few of the many opportunities available that require a wide variety of talents, skills, and abilities. VIP positions can be highly competitive depending on location and type of activity. VIPs should be in good health to successfully carry out their duties and responsibilities. A medical exam may be required for some volunteer positions. Some opportunities may also require a background investigation due to increased security. Contact the park volunteer manager if you have questions by visiting nps.gov and selecting the park of your choice.

How to Become a VIP

VIP, Grand Canyon National Park, Arizona

Complete the application on the Web

Volunteer program information, opportunities, events, and activities are featured on nps.gov/volunteer. You may also visit volunteer.gov/gov to search the numerous NPS VIP opportunities and to apply on-line. Your electronic application goes directly to the park’s volunteer manager. If you are interested in a particular site that is not listed, visit the park’s web page at nps.gov for contact information.

Complete the application on this folder

If you do not wish to apply online, complete and mail or fax this application. If you select more than one park, send a copy to each. Be specific in describing your talents, skills, and interests to enable the VIP Manager to better match your skills with the park’s needs.

The VIP Manager will review your application

If your application meets the park’s needs, you will be contacted for an interview or to discuss further details. A park may find that there is no match with their current needs. You will be notified in either case.

If you are selected

When selected as a VIP, you and your supervisor will discuss and sign an agreement that describes your duties and responsibilities, outlines a tentative work schedule, and includes any additional details of the volunteer arrangement. To meet increased security concerns, some volunteer jobs may require a background investigation. After appropriate training and orientation, you will begin work as a VIP with the National Park Service. You are a Very Important Person.

Working as a VIP

As a VIP you will represent the National Park Service, work in unique settings, preserve this country’s natural and cultural legacy, and help visitors discover the resources, meanings, and values found in your national parks.

Based on your job assignment, you may wear an official volunteer uniform. Park housing and reimbursement for out-of-pocket expenses may also be available. You will be covered for worker’s compensation in the event of an injury while on duty and, in the event of property damage or personal injury, you will be covered for tort claim liability.

Volunteer time can be counted as work experience for future jobs, but does not count towards Federal Civil Service time if you should later become a Federal employee.
